Some Important Womens

Stories like “Mississippi Women Their Histories, Their lives,” by Linda Reed, “The Arpilleras; Culture of Resistance,” by Mayo-Raggie, and “Irma Muller,” by Marjorie Agosin. These stories all have something in common. However there are individuals who had different goals for themselves: like Fannie Hou Hammer, Irma Muller and Author Mayo-Raggie are important people with struggles, detonations, and failure that surround their environment. Then I give you my points on, “what I think the point that I thought it was making?”

Mayo-raggie in “Arpilleras: culture of resistance,” a woman who claims that in Chile arpilleras were made, to provide for their childrens and resistance against the government. Chilean struggles against the dictatorship to survive a culture whose dynamism is fed. Chilean detonation was to feed their kids, keep clothes on their kids, and keep the peace. The Chilean failure was the women in Chile are still going through hard times and still losing loved ones. My points in detonation about Raggie is how Chilean work hard to put feed in the house and keep a place to live in. My point of Raggie failure shows that at least someone tried to stand up for themselves and loved ones.

From the story “Irma Muller,” Irma Muller only son disappeared, Muller a middle aged and middle class woman and stay in Santiago. Muller detonation was to find her missing son and to stay strong. Muller look in jail, at concentration camps, and ministries. Muller struggles was the look for her son and getting people to stop disappearing in Chile. Muller failure to find her son and do to tryna stop the disappears put her though a lot. This also made her a strong women in Chile. My point of Irma Muller detonation is that even though you lose someone you still can make it and be stronger then you was before. My point of Muller had failure to find her son and stop the disappears, it made her an important person to some woman in Chile.

In the story “Mississippi Women, Their Histories, Their Lives,” Fannie Hou Hammer a women born in little Rock, was a middle aged and black women. Hammer struggle to racial equality and her civil rights. Hammer detonation to get her rights, like for blacks to be treated like human beans. Hammer fail to get her civil rights but got her voice heard; when Hammer did a speech at Tougaloo College in 1917. My point of Hammer Struggles just because the color of your skin, should not have the power to take your rights for freedom. My point of Hammer detonation is that we all should be treated equal. My point for hammer failure is that even though she fail to get her right. Hammer is important to the people for standing up for herself, and leting the people hearing her voice.

I have just give you a synthesis on three stories, “ mississippi Women Their Histories and Their lives, Irma Muller, and Arpilleras: Culture of Resistance, about Fannie Lou Hammer, irma Muller, and Mayo-Raggie on their struggles, detonation , and failure that surround their environment.

Synthesis Guidelines

Grading Rubric

20% Grammar, Mechanics, Usage

- The essay should be free of grammatical errors.
- Particularly avoid the following: run-on sentences, subject/verb agreement errors, sentence fragments, comma splices, and awkward constructions.

5% Guidelines Met (Cover Sheet, Typed/Formatted, etc.)

- The essay should be submitted according to all of the specs on the assignment sheet.
- The essay should be on time.
- The essay should be 1000-1500 words long.
- The essay should have a cover sheet.
- The essay should have standard margins and fonts.

5% Introduction and Thesis

- The introduction should begin with a general statement about the topic you will consider.
- The introduction should specifically mention each figure to be discussed in the essay.
- The thesis should provide a clear roadmap to the rest of the essay.
- The introduction and thesis should raise expectations fulfilled by the rest of the essay.

10% Interpretive Conclusion

- The essay should identify a relationship (ie something the units have in common, some issue raised by each unit, etc.) among the figures/units under discussion.
- The essay should draw an interpretive conclusion that describes a thoughtful relationship among the units.

20% Summaries of Information

- Information about the figures you discuss should be summarized accurately and fairly.

25% Analysis of Relationships among Figures/Sources

- The essay should explain how each text/figure under consideration relates to the topic being discussed. For example, if your topic is “redefining failure,” then each paragraph should explain how a particular person inspires us to think differently about failure.
- The topic under discussion should guide the points emphasized in the essay. Irrelevant details—facts and information not directly related to the thesis—should not be included.

10% Overall Organization and Coherence

- The essay should follow the logical sequence established by the introduction and thesis.
- The essay should use transitions between ideas.
- Sentence patterns should be varied with coordination and subordination.
- The essay should not be confusing or hard to follow.

5% Conclusion

Crime in Parks

Parks Crimes are committed daily. The statistics about crimes in parks are going up every day now. The National Parks are supposed to be laid-back places, where you can get away from stress and strain from work and home are all left behind, but how is the parks in the nation safe, relaxing , and tranquil place? When we have watchdogs, park rangers, FBI agents in the park areas and it still aren't safe for visitors (Knickerbocker, 2009). Research Studies from New York and the Schroeder study came up with a few reasoning for the issue in park crimes. There have been plenty of reports about drugs busts, rapes, murders, and more things going on in the National Parks. Adults and children are exposed to things they shouldn't be seeing or hearing. Park Service Spokesman, David Barna said, "We're suffering from the same social problems that most likely urban areas are."(Knickerbocker, 2009) The United States crime rates are going up as the year goes by. People who visit National Parks are now worried about getting rob, rape, shot at, seeing gang violence, and more. It's really is getting ridiculous for the United States of America. The National Park Service has an astoundingly poor safety record for the officers," says Randall Kendrick, who's a former park ranger in the Fraternal Order of Police (Knickerbocker, 2009). Crimes in Public Parks is always growing problem in the American Cities. It's going to have to be up to use the people to stop it and make the world a better place.

Crimes in National Parks have been going on in different states as the years keep coming. These types of crimes killing, drug busts, rapes, and others just don't happen in the park it goes on around the park to where it happens anywhere. In August 2005, a small team was game warden and deputed climbed through coyote brush and Manzanita in the Sierra Azul Open Space Preserve outside San Jose, California (Harkinson). There was an officer shot in both legs then seconds later another deputy was shot and killed at the searching of illegal pot farm in the parks areas (Harkinson). California and Boston is where you will have the most violence in national Parks do to my reading. Take Franklin Park, in Boston; Crimes are committed around the average of 22 violent and an average of 48 property crimes per year. Also drug dealing sexual assault and murder happening in Franklin Park. Also Boston Police find a man with a life threatening gunshot wounds at play stead in the Franklin Park. Then back in the day, this park had racisms crimes happening around the area that started some crimes in the park also. This crimes cause an issue to visitors coming to the park. The Franklin Park is known for being unsafe. People visit parks now thinking about getting gun down, rappers, gang violence, and drug dealing in the parks. Simone Auster, directory of Emeralds Necklace Conservancy said, 'that the perception of Franklin Park remains markedly negative in the minds of potential visitors to the area. . In Memphis, Tennessee at the Overton Park, a man shot a lady in the afternoon and in front of a families get together for the fourth of July. Then kids and parents saw the shooting were the man killed a lady then him. The victims that want to the rescue said, "A stray bullets could have hit anyone. When this park was suppose to be an outdoor activity, sightseeing, and just a relaxing. National parks also have less staffed park rangers on duty, which are also a problem sometime when it comes to a problem in the parks. Some of the issue had to deal with money to because if the state at help take care of the parks areas then bad things are going to occur in and around it, making it not safe for others. The insufficient funds for programs and activities at parks are a14 out of 16 responses in major Challenge. The inadequate use and vacancy at some parks of facilities just shows it isn't enough stuff to do at the national park to keep a big crowd or people coming back (Walls). If we could get help keeping the neighborhood parks up crimes and the Rates won't be up so high.

Most Neighborhoods Parks begins in the outdoors recreation opportunities in the united State (Walls). Research studies about Crimes in Parks from Herbert W. Schroeder and L. M. Anderson and from the New York Police Department was trying to make national Parks a safer place to come to. Schroeder and Anderson studies that maybe if park managers have attempted to control crimes through design change, it should make it better and safer for other (Anderson). Since many parks have a high risk of crimes happen, let add more security, and remove shrubs to improve visibility. They discover that ten national Parks in Chicago and seven in Atlanta were selected in this study of safety (Anderson). These parks in these cities are some of the different kinds of urban recreation opportunities common in American with the same different visibility sites. Some of the park managers and designers can be alter at least to some extent about the physical features rates. Clearly the safety and scenic quality are related to many visual features we measured, but the relationship in different as they discover. New Yorkers were afraid to go to the National Parks in the areas for many years and still are to this day. People are seeing the run down parks are a hood or a place for even more danger to occur at than the streets. The city of New York enforces new rules and deters vandalism and crimes by the Park Enforcement Patrol Officers (Schwartz). This doesn't mean that crimes still aren't committed, but it has slow down and the ratting has drop since 2005. Councilmember Peter Vallone Jr. and Joseph Addabbo Jr., had introduce that the police need to report felonies that happen in parks and make it information available to the Council City of the Law (Schwartz). Making Parks Safer in the city was to expend the crimes-tracking programs to the total of 100 parks after each year. New York City Council Public Safety Committee figure that is was lack of communication between the police and the public. Referring to drug bust, rapes, gun down, killing, and more are going down in the National Parks. This is the reason why we cannot stop the crimes. We got to do better.

The solutions to solving the problem of crime in parks are we need more officers, security Cameras, and Environmental Design will help. Crimes are going to happen regardless of who or what technology they bring into the parks. There are ways around everything one thing that might help is to decrease the crime is to have more staffs members. They also could patrol the parks 24 hours a day. Possibly even put up some signs with rules and warnings on there. I would even have cameras set up around the national parks areas now. Security Cameras can be a big role in making the National Parks safer to the community. It will catch everything, even at night it could go to night cam and pick up things that go on at around the midnight hour. Police Patrol can walk the surface throughout the day and night so keep crimes from happening and keep parks safe from damages. The National Parks are supposed to be seen as an escape from urban stress, a place to exercises, read a book, and enjoy picnic (Schwartz). Now people just look at them as a crime scene or a bad place to go. Time spent at the drafting table can make park safer. If it have to come down to the designing of a National park to look good to stop crimes then why not try it. I do believe that if a place looks like something it will always be something. So design a safer National park for the people. Put a big and long gate around the park for security, and make it a one way in and a way one out. Give people a time limited to spend at the park. Crimes only prevention through environmental design is an increasing in National Parks. Millions of visitors each year come to visit these parks each year. Families come to enjoy Mother Nature and to put it in their book of memories. Public parks crimes have been increasing over the years. Also crimes in national parks are rare considering the numbers of visitors each year. Haven issues dealing with safety for visitors or outsiders. Alcohol and drugs are part of most of the incidents. . Parks are supposed to be for kids, family get together, and not for crimes. . It's also a place to local big hangouts, but we can't if we don't put an end to the violence.

Problem Statement

The problem in my topic is that children need their parents. Kids need physiological affection from their real parents. My research paper is not talking about foster home kids and teens. Just the ones who parents decide to pass them to a family relative like an aunt or the oldest child in the family to play the parent roll. That the problem these days is that parents are not standing their ground and rising their child.

Comment [A1]: Not sure what word this is. Psychological or physical? If psychological, what is psychological affection?

Comment [A2]: Good point!

Comment [A3]: role

To solving all this, I am going to do research on finding out: hows the child reaction to not having the physiological effects from their parents? How big of a difference will it make if the mother and father stayed together? What is the childs outcome in life as they become adults?

Comment [A4]: See note above about this word.

Comment [A5]: Children's
